

Who Are We?

- We are a group of patients, family, friends, physicians, administrators and others who seek to provide support and information for those affected by Posterior Cortical Atrophy (PCA).
- The physician director of the support group, Dr. Victoria Pelak, and her Administrative Assistant, Jerri Lusk, maintain these webpages and directly support group activities with no charge or dues to members. Please consider donating to support PCA-related, patient-focused activities at the University of Colorado School of Medicine using the donation button on the Home Page.
- We meet to share ideas on what can help a person, and those who support them, function better while living with PCA.
- At our meetings, we discuss ideas that improve function, current research, and future plans for the group. Often, we spend time discussing a topic that someone raises or a question that someone has about PCA or something they heard or read about. We also have guest speakers.
- We meet at the Sue Anschutz-Rodgers Eye Center on the Anschutz Medical Campus, where Dr. Pelak is a Professor of Neurology and Ophthalmology, approximately every other month.
- Anyone is welcome to join us during our meetings.
